

Brian Chong has been a proud resident of the Treeline community for 14 years. During this time, he and his wife have raised their four children here, giving him a deep appreciation for the value of a safe, welcoming, and well-maintained neighborhood. As a longtime homeowner, Brian understands the importance of responsible community management and the role a strong HOA plays in preserving property values and enhancing quality of life.

Brian brings 22 years of experience as an electrical engineer, where he has built a career centered on problem-solving, planning, and dependable execution. His background has equipped him with a practical approach to decision-making, a strong attention to detail, and the ability to evaluate both technical and financial aspects of complex projects. These skills translate directly to HOA board service, where thoughtful and well-informed decisions are essential.

Before entering the engineering field, Brian served in the U.S. Army from 1996 to 2000. His military service helped shape his commitment to accountability, teamwork, and service to others—values he continues to carry into his professional and personal life.

As an HOA board member, Brian is dedicated to supporting transparent communication, responsible budgeting, and community involvement. He believes in maintaining Treeline as a place where families feel connected, homeowners feel heard, and everyone can enjoy a safe and thriving environment. He looks forward to contributing his experience and energy to the continued growth and success of the Treeline community.
